Antioch University believes that effective communications among its leadership and stakeholders is paramount to the successful fulfillment of its mission. Communications that are transparent, open, clear, timely, and beneficial to the University are valued. The University respects the use of proper channels, with clearly defined lines of responsibility and authority, when communicating. Both formal and informal knowledge-sharing is encouraged among colleagues. The University is committed to supporting a safe communications environment. We endorse a process that assures confidentiality and allows all to take responsibility for accessing and securing necessary information.
